

MARK DAVID IDEN

Mark Iden is a senior consultant to Oceanites and a member of the Advisory Board. He is a graduate of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, a joint-degree program of Harvard and Tufts University in Boston Massachusetts. Mr. Iden has worked for many years throughout Europe and the Middle East. He has been an advisor to several governments, including Afghanistan and Iraq.

Mr. Iden has served as an intermediary between government and industry throughout Africa, Asia-Pacific, Europe and the Middle East. He has particular expertise in the fields of diplomacy, intercultural relations, energy (both conventional and renewable) and humanitarian aid.

He has served as Chief Negotiator with Caltex Petroleum Corporation, subsidiary of Chevron and Texaco, Preussag AG, and coordinated the operations of its 250 subsidiaries in the Middle East, with a particular focus on Preussag Energie, the corporation's upstream oil and gas company. He presently serves as a founding member of the Board of Directors of the Pipeline Technology Conference.